

Fair tonight and Friday.

The Washington Times

LAST EDITION

NUMBER 6126.

WASHINGTON, THURSDAY EVENING, OCTOBER 15, 1908.

PRICE ONE CENT.

BLUE GRASS STATE INVADED BY TAFT

Candidate Given Warm Welcome by Democratically Inclined Colonels.

MAKES SHORT TALK ALMOST EVERY STOP

Has Little Hope of Swinging State
Into Republican Column
Again.

By JAMES HAY, JR.
LEXINGTON, Ky., Oct. 15.—Fresh from triumphs that have apparently lifted Ohio out of the doubtful column and clinched West Virginia for the Republicans, Judge Taft today came into Kentucky, which will go against him unless a political miracle is wrought. In the great Roosevelt landslide of 1904 the Blue Grass State went Democratic by a majority of more than 11,000 votes. In 1896 it was Republican by 281 votes, and ever since then it has been necessary only to mention the number "281" to have a violent species of hydrophobia attack every Kentuckian whose beard was more than three inches long and whose hat brim was more than four inches wide.

The old school Kentucky colonel is a Democrat, no matter what happens. Nevertheless, the Republicans of the State, under the leadership of Governor Willson and Senator-elect Bradley, are making a determined fight for the national ticket. Against them the Democrats have an unusually good organization, led by "Marse" Henry Watterson and Senator William Lindsay, who have buried their personal differences and are working together in harmony. It may be that the political miracle will be wrought, but it is hardly expected by Judge Taft himself.

Reason for Tour.
In keeping with the assertion he made in Cincinnati, Taft is invading the South, because he wants to help it to realize that it is a part of the Union which should take an active part in national politics. His first speech of the day was delivered in Huntington, W. Va., where a crowd of more than 4,000 people had assembled when the special pulled in at 7:30 o'clock.

It had not been intended to make a stop here, but as the crowd had gathered, Taft did his quick dressing suit and made a speech on the prosperity issue and the fallacies of Bryanism. Stops after that were all in Kentucky, at Ashland, Olive Hill, Morehead, Salt Lick, Mt. Sterling, Winchester, and this town. In spite of its Democratic tendencies, the State gave Taft large and enthusiastic audiences, listening with particular approval to his speeches on labor. The candidate also made a telling appeal to the farmers, arguing that they can do themselves justice only by voting for the Republican party, which is the author of prosperity.

Senator William Alden Smith of Michigan is still with the special, which remains on the train until some time next week. His and Taft's speeches were received with the greatest enthusiasm. At Ashland, Senator-elect Bradley, Representative Langley, Bennett, and Edwards, and Republican State Chairman Winn came aboard the special. Later in the day, Governor Willson will join the party. All will accompany Taft to Louisville for the big meeting to-night.

JAPS ARE STOPPED AT CHINA'S BORDER

Complications May Follow Refusal of Permission to Pursue Marauding Bands.
TOKYO, Oct. 15.—A skirmish that followed the refusal of the Chinese frontier office to permit a detachment of Japanese soldiers to pursue a band of Chinese marauders across the Korean line into China, bids fair today to lead to serious complications between China and Japan.

LOST BOY FOUND.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15.—After an absence of nearly four weeks, and as good as dead by his parents, Giuseppe Giunta, seven years old, was found by a policeman wandering about the Grand Central Depot. He was taken to a police station, where he was later claimed by his father, Antonio Giunta, a retired grocer, and taken home.

WEATHER REPORT.

The rain area that has covered the north Pacific States and the northern Rocky mountain region since Sunday has extended southward over northern and middle California; elsewhere the weather has been fair.

Temperature has risen generally from the Rocky mountains to the Atlantic coast, and has fallen in the north Pacific and northern Rocky mountain States.

Fair weather with slowly rising temperature is indicated for the Middle-Eastern and Southeastern States during the next few days.

The winds along the middle Atlantic coast will be light southerly; on the south Atlantic coast light northeasterly; and on the east Gulf coast light to northeast.

Steamers departing today for European ports will have light to fresh south to southwest winds and fair weather to the Grand Banks.

TEMPERATURE.

9 a. m. 56
10 a. m. 62
11 a. m. 68
Noon 72

SUN TABLE.

Sun rises 6:37
Sun sets 6:35

TIDE TABLE.

High tide 6:27 a. m., 6:41 p. m.
Low tide 12:23 a. m., 12:23 p. m.

REVEALS SECRETS OF BANKER MORSE

District Attorney Describes "Get Rich Quick" Speculations in Opening Address of Trial of Bank of North America Cases.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—United States District Attorney Stimson, prosecutor of Charles W. Morse, trust promoter and banker, revealed the secrets of Morse's "get-rich-quick" speculations in his opening address to the jury today.

Morse, together with Alfred H. Curtis, president of the Bank of North America, is being tried on indictments alleging overvaluation of accounts and wrongful use of funds. Conviction carries with it a prison sentence.

Judge Hough, who is presiding over the trial, today directed that the jury be locked up over night and kept under the constant surveillance of Deputy United States marshals.

This is the first time such a thing has been done in the history of this department of the judiciary. Judge Hough ordered Marshal Henkle to look after the comfort of the jurors and to keep them under guard while they are at the Astor House, where they will be quartered during the trial.

Morse gave the first show of interest when Stimson cited a case which he declared was similar to the one on trial. "A bank president violates the banking law by illegally investing funds of his institution even if it is done for the honest purpose of making money for the bank," declared the Government's representative.

"And he commits a crime if the money is not invested honestly, but used to purchase stocks from himself at exorbitant prices," he added.

"We will show you that President Curtis, while nominal head of the Bank of North America, was only the mouth-piece of the defendant, Morse," continued Stimson.

The bookkeeping system was so involved, the prosecutor declared, that even the employees were not aware of the juggling going on. They were part and parcel of the manipulations without knowing it, he insisted.

Six cases were reported to the Health Department Thursday last and since that time nineteen cases have been reported, making twenty-five cases in that vicinity in all. The extent of the spread can be judged from the fact that during the same period the total number of cases reported to the District, exclusive of Georgetown, is only 25.

Milk Suspected.
Dr. Woodward said today that circumstances generally point strongly to infected milk as the cause of the typhoid fever, and yet it has been impossible, up to the present time, to discover any typhoid fever cases in any dairy or dairy farms from which the milk supply has been received.

"Notwithstanding this fact," he added, said Dr. Woodward, "twenty-one of the patients are known to have consumed milk from one or two dairies and these two dairies have received a part of the milk from the same source."

"Since this fact was discovered one of the medical inspectors in the service of the Health Department visited this farm but was unable to discover any source of infection either past or present. Later Dr. Lumsden and I personally went over the farm without any greater success. Specimens for laboratory examination have been collected from all persons now on the farm to determine whether any of them are bacillus carriers."

Other Sources.
"Various sources of infection other than the milk supply have been suggested by interested persons, such for instance as the old Georgetown reservoir, the streams of water running through the valley north of R street, the conditions of the public sewers, the condition of nearby water mains, and the waste man who vends his waffles in the neighborhood, but none of these are regarded by those who are investigating the situation as likely to be found responsible for the trouble."

Dr. Woodward added that he and Dr. Lumsden will continue to give the matter their personal attention, and will exhaust every means to discover the source of the disease.

BAD MONEY PLANT FOUND AND RAIDED

Outfit With Great Capacity for Making Counterfeit Coins Located.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—After being searched for months by the detectives of the Secret Service located a counterfeiters' plant in a tenement house in East Eleventh street early today which, they declare, was capable of turning out thousands of dollars worth of spurious dimes and quarters a month.

Federal Agent Daniel Calahan and Richard Jarvis captured two men whom they had been "sitting for" some time in Newark. When the detectives arrived at 41 East Eleventh street, an address given them by the two men they had arrested in Newark, they smashed down the door and found inside the rooms one of the most complete outfits for counterfeiting that has been taken in many years.

ROBERTS REFUSES TO ASSIST POLICE

Baltimore Millionaire, Who Was Shot on Boardwalk, Disappears.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 15.—Charles B. Roberts, the millionaire Baltimorean who was mysteriously shot on the boardwalk here while riding in a roller chair with Mrs. William B. G. Williams, a prominent Baltimore society leader, has disappeared from this city and left the police in the lurch.

Last night Roberts entered a closed carriage and was driven to the railroad station.

MACKAY IS FIREMAN.
ROBYN, L. I., Oct. 15.—Clarence H. Mackay, of Harbor Hill, who for several years has been an honorary member of Rescue Hook and Ladder Company, has been elected to full membership, and now is an active fireman subject to all alarms.

LEADING BALLOON TOWED FROM SEA

Mishap to Helvetia Robs
Her of International Race Cup.

BANSHEE DECLARED ENDURANCE WINNER

Two Vessels Still Missing and Are Thought to Have Been Wafted to Their Fate.

BERLIN, Oct. 15.—The international cup balloon race committee this afternoon discovered that the Helvetia, which had been announced as the winner of the race, had been towed a mile to shore after alighting in the North Sea near Molde, Norway.

For this reason she was disqualified, and the race was given to the Banshee, the German balloon Busley was reported to the International Race Commission today as having fallen into the North sea. Dr. Niemeyer, the pilot, and Herr Heidmann, his assistant, were rescued by a steamer and taken to North, Scotland.

All of the balloons that entered the James Gordon Bennett Cup race are now accounted for, though the Hegersell and Platan, two German entries in the endurance race, are still missing. They sailed on Monday, and it is certain that they have either fallen into the sea or on some inaccessible spot on land. Every hour increases the probability of a fatal termination of their flight.

The Swiss Helvetia is the winner of the cup race, its flight to Borgas, Norway, 86 miles from Berlin, breaking all balloon records for remaining in the air. The Helvetia was believed yesterday to have fallen into the sea, but Colonel Schaeck, the pilot, and his assistant, Herr Messmer, report that at no time was their balloon in danger.

The English Banshee wins the second prize. The crew of the Busley deliberately attempted to cross the North sea, and their daring was repaid by one of the most thrilling experiences that ever fell to an aeronaut. While not as near death as Messrs. Arnold and Hewitt, the crew of the St. Louis, which also fell into the North sea, they endured a much longer period of terrible suspense.

Story of Flight.
In a statement to the race commission the pilot said: "At 1 o'clock Wednesday morning we passed over Hamburg, going in a northwesterly direction. We saw the sea before us, but as we still had seventeen sacks of ballast and had lost but little gas, a rapid calculation convinced us that we could cross the sea and reach England."

"After sailing about one hundred miles over the ocean, the wind suddenly changed to the northward, threatening to carry us to the Arctic ocean. We recognized the desperateness of our plight and thought we were doomed. No ship was in sight and we were drifting steadily from the usual track of ships."

"Hours passed in this terrible situation when finally we sighted a ship, the Prinz Wilhelm. The captain saw our distress signals. We opened the balloon valves and fell into the sea, close to the steamer. Boats were put out and we were picked up without difficulty. We lost everything except our lives and consider ourselves the luckiest balloonists in the world."

Is Disqualified.
The Busley is disqualified from sharing in the money, as a descent upon the sea does not constitute a landing, according to the cup race rules. The Busley maker, the third balloon that fell into the North Sea, the others being the American St. Louis and Spanish Castilla. These mishaps, with the bursting of the American Conqueror and the Spanish Monates, make the race the most disastrous yet held.

Lonesome Guide of Yellowstone
Favored Guest at White House

Roved in and Out of Executive Mansion, Basking in President's Graces, Until He Satisfied His Hunger for Companionship.

Having journeyed 3,000 miles to renew his friendship with President Roosevelt and Secretary Loeb, George Whittaker, a guide in Yellowstone Park, and the President's constant companion in that beautiful tract of land, will journey back to the solitude of the park, satisfied that he has been well repaid for the trip.

All doors have been opened to George at the White House since his arrival in Washington, and no Senator or Supreme Court justice had readier access than he. Wearing a well-fitting suit of clothes, a brown slouch hat, and with a face tanned by many years' exposure to rough weather, Whittaker has been walking into the White House two or three times a day during the week, but he kept so much to himself that he unconsciously created an air of mystery about his movements. He dispelled this today, however, when he told the story of his trip East.

"You see," said George, "I belong out in Yellowstone Park. It gets right lonesome in that big place sometimes. A couple of weeks ago I decided that nothing would satisfy me but a trip to Washington to see the President and Mr. Loeb. Whenever the President came out to Yellowstone I was always with him, and I want to tell you that I learned to like him mighty well. He's a prince and a wonder. We swear by him back West, and I don't know of a man that wouldn't go through hot air for him."

"No, I haven't anything else to do here, and I guess I'll go back to the park tomorrow. I don't think it strange that I should come all this way to see the President and Mr. Loeb. When we like people out our way we like them right well and a stretch of two or three thousand miles doesn't stop us from renewing old friendships."

A part of Whittaker's time with the President has been devoted to animated discussions of the President's proposed hunting trip in South Africa. The weather-beaten guide denies that he will make the trip with the President. "He told me," he said regretfully, "that he isn't going to take anyone with him."

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD.

Funeral services for Mrs. Alice K. Wallace, wife of Brig. Gen. William M. Wallace, U. S. A., retired, who died Tuesday at Garfield Hospital, were held this afternoon at St. Thomas' Episcopal Church. The Rev. C. Ernest Smith, rector of St. Thomas' Church, conducted the services. The body was interred in the National Cemetery at Arlington.

HONDURAS SENDS UGARTE TO MEXICO

DR. ANGEL UGARTE.
Dr. Luis Lazo Will Succeed Diplomat, Who Has Been Assigned to Similar Post in the Republic of Old Mexico.

Dr. Angel Ugarte, minister from Honduras to the United States, is to be relieved of his mission, at Washington, and will be made Honduran minister to Mexico.

Dr. Luis Lazo, one of the most skilled diplomats in the service of his government, will succeed Dr. Ugarte. Dr. Lazo has already arrived in Washington and was presented at the State Department this morning.

The change in ministers was made by the Honduran government without any notification to the State Department at Washington, so far as could be learned today, and the Bureau of American Republics, which usually receives all important news of the Latin-American countries immediately, has not yet been officially notified of the withdrawal of Minister Ugarte.

Dr. Ugarte will leave Washington some time next month and go direct to Honduras, where his appointment papers to Mexico will await him. He will receive his instructions direct from the President, and at once proceed to his new post in Mexico City.

Considerable interest attaches to the retirement from Washington of Dr. Ugarte, who is one of the best-known South American diplomats at the Capital. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.

News of this action on the part of the Honduran government reached the State Department in a letter from another American consul in that country. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

CAR OF GASOLINE BLOWS UP; 7 HURT

Firemen Open Tank in Derailed Freight Train and Explosion Follows.

AMHERST, Ohio, Oct. 15.—Seven persons were seriously, and a dozen slightly, injured by the explosion of a car of gasoline on the Lakeshore railroad here, early today. Following the explosion, flames spread through the derailed freight train, and several were destroyed.

A broken wheel caused the derailment of three cars of a freight train, one a tank car. The gasoline leaked from the car with a roar, and the members of the fire department, and two score spectators were blown over an embankment.

The most seriously injured were: Fireman John W. Einwacher, Herman Kreger, Herman Kahl, and A. J. Heibel, and spectators Sebastian Stoiz, William Hagen, and William Muss. All of the victims will recover, with the possible exception of Hagen, a schoolboy, who is terribly burned.

The three cars were burned, the trainmen having disconnected the balance of the train.

POSTOFFICE REPORT.
The report of Postmaster Barnes for the month of September shows the receipts of the Washington City Post-office to have been $102,463.19, divided as follows: Sale of stamped paper, $88,423.90; second class postage, $18,825.15; box rents, $94.93; third class postage paid in money, $11.90; sale of waste material, $59.94; surplus derived from the sale of stamped paper in fractional lots, $29.97.

BRYAN GIVES LIST OF CONTRIBUTORS

Is Mainly Interesting Because of Prominent Names
Missing.

STATEMENT IS MADE BY MACK AND RIDDER

$226,962.88 Has Been Spent and Appeal Is Made for $100,000 More.

By J. C. WELLIVER.
NEW YORK, Oct. 15.—The list of contributors who have given $100 or more to the Democratic National Committee was given out this morning. It is mainly interesting because of the long list of names of distinguished Democrats which does not appear. For instance, the Maryland list doesn't include the names of either Senator or anybody else prominent in politics of the State.

Just one Marylander gave up—T. H. Shriver. The Pennsylvania list doesn't include the names of either National Committeeman Kerr or former Committeeman Guffy. Neither Senator from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, North Carolina, Tennessee, or Texas appears as a contributor. Senator Owen of Oklahoma, and Senator Tillman of South Carolina seem to be the only Senators who have separated themselves from their money. Owen giving $1,000 and Tillman $300.

Judge Alton B. Parker doesn't appear in the New York list.

One Explanation.
Members of the lower house of Congress are almost as hard to find in the list as Senators. The explanation, which doesn't come from the Democratic managers, but is unofficially very well understood to be correct—is that the big contributions are going mainly to State committees and being used by them. They will not be subjected to publicity laws except in a few cases.

It is well known that a large part of the big contributions are being here by all the political tourists who have been traveling through the country, that the Democratic State committees everywhere have more money than the Republicans. This is markedly true in States like Kansas, Nebraska, Ohio, Indiana, and all the Middle Western region, for which the Democrats are fighting hard.

here they are getting it isn't very clear. The State managers say the people are giving it. The Republicans here, who admit that the Democrats are getting the big end of the money, and nearly everywhere have most of it to spend, smile cynically and sadly—and intimate that the big contributions are going to the Democrats.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.

News of this action on the part of the Honduran government reached the State Department in a letter from another American consul in that country. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.

News of this action on the part of the Honduran government reached the State Department in a letter from another American consul in that country. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.

News of this action on the part of the Honduran government reached the State Department in a letter from another American consul in that country. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.

News of this action on the part of the Honduran government reached the State Department in a letter from another American consul in that country. It was rumored that he had been relieved from his post here because of a misunderstanding that arose some months ago between himself and Assistant Secretary of State Bacon. When asked about this today Dr. Ugarte denied it most emphatically.

"That was merely a little incident," he said, "and Mr. Bacon and I are the best of friends. In fact, we were never anything else. It was nothing and has long been forgotten by Mr. Bacon and myself."

"Our Government determined to send a delegation to Mexico, and that country is similarly represented in Honduras, and the office of minister was tendered to me. The President asked me if I cared to go to Mexico. I told him I should like the post, and it was decided I should go, and that Dr. Lazo should succeed me here. I shall be sorry to leave Washington, in one way, but the opportunity to fill an office in a new country is one I could not ignore."

The little incident which involved Assistant Secretary of State Bacon and Dr. Ugarte occurred last year, when two American consuls in Honduras were summarily dismissed from their offices by the President of Honduras without the formality of notifying the State Department at Washington that these men were persona non grata with the Honduran government.